My Dearle; Two letters a day is much for any bushand, But I want to be a lover always. My ride here was an endless one, for everything reminded me of our happiness, which I have just left. Would that I could express the depths of my love. It is more than idolatry, and heaven must be the place where we receive the the place where we receive the emiles and caresses of the one we love. I have a feeling to cut out the business trip to get back to my "goll." I'd give many years of my life to get back so those strong arms could encircle your loving kid. Your boy won't do anything his goil don't want him to do. Do you? I do. Yes, trillions, trillions and always and always and always BERNIE. To, the Very Same Lady. "That letter was written to the lady, you say kicked you in the stomach a few days before?" asked the lawyer.

Dearest Lette Lilly Love: Youse

Dearest Little Lilly Love: Youse always in me thoughts. I'se loves youse, dearle, trillions, trillions and trillions always and always and always and always. Until our arms are locked together lonesomeness is over me. I can't work. Do you? How much? Fifty trillions did you say? Aye. I'm happy. With all my love, kisses and prayers and love to Chocolate and Belle-Hop, your loving hub. your loving hub,

"And this letter," asked Mr. de Rou-vier, "was it also written to the lady you claimed you found writing to an admirer, and who the week before kicked you?"
"Yes sir, that's so," replied Carnen, quite Inaudibly.

Mr. de Bouvier read again: Adams House, Aug. 11, '08.

Dearest Lilly Love—It's me to the station with this letter so my sweetheart won't have to wait. Had one of my restless, jumping nights in anxiety and misery because my love's arms were not about me. Could not think, work or rest. So I took to writing another letter to

I took to writing another letter to my little Lilly love.

I love you, Lilly, dearle, more than you know. Your poor, lonesome kid missed you. I just think and think, and wonder what would happen to your kid if I ever lost my Lilly love. If I could hear over the phone the words: 'Kiss me, dear,' I think I would go out and shout. For Fise loves youse, goll, and if I ever losses youse, I pray God to take me, too. I do, I do, I do, Do you? You do? Aye, loy. Yes, Lilly, love, trillions, trillions and trillions. Yes, always, always and always. Think of your kid husband, Hernie, who loves you more 'than life, who who loves you more than life, who sends kisses, hugs and prayers.

"And that, sir, was addressed to the ame lady, the day following?" asked the lawyer. "Yes, to Mrs. Curnen."

He Missed a Word of Love.

The lawyer kept on reading: Dearle, my Lilly Love-My second Dearie, my Lilly Love-My second day here has not made me reconciled to my lonsocieness. It increases day by day. Hist, dearie, why no word of love from you. I'm most unhappy, for it's the first letter I ever got minus the love, hugs and aises. I await another carrying bundles of what the other falled to bring. You knew for what your kid, your boy, yearns. I'm missing the smuggles and cuddles and find troubles here.

Have you caught up in your sleep?
Have you caught up in your sleep?

Lamberts Produce Jewelry: Hence Your Saving

"Buy of producers" is the advice given by the Secretary of Agli-ture. "Middlemen keep prices up."

We have been preaching this doctrine for a third of a century.

Those who come to us for their Christmas Jewelry BUY OF PRO-DUCERS, and therefore pay only PRICES STRIPPED OF EVERY CENT OF MIDDLEMEN'S PROFIT.

BUY OF PRODUCERS YOU HAVE FAITH IN. We have sold diamond and gold jewelry in this neighborhood since 1877. Each succeeding Christmas brings us a wider circle of customers who realize the saving of buying from a firm satisfied with one profit, and the security of a guarantee that goes with every purchase. Advertisng would be a waste of money and ink unless we made every assurance a little more than good.

Our Catalog tells in 168 pages, richly illustrated in black and white and in color, of Christmas jewel-gifts as attractive in price as in art. We send the book free to any address.

Select your Christmas Jewelry now. Let us keep it in our vaults -at our risk, of course-until you want it. You pay then.
